Deacon Clubs Family

SPRINGFIELD, Va. — Flailing a baseball bat with frenzied fierceness, the son of a former controversial anti-Communist investigator Saturday clubbed his three teen-age children to death and injured his wife. He then killed himself with a butcher knife.

Authorities said there was no immediate explanation for the attack by J. B. Matthews, Jr., 40, an aeronautical engineer for the Federal Aviation Agency and a church deacon.

Victims of their father's attack were 13-year-old twins, Stephen and Sharon, and Ann Susan Matthews, 14. Their mother, also struck with the bat, was taken to a hospital where her condition was reported as fair.

Neighbors who said they regarded Matthews as a home-loving man reported he had been ill recently and had complained of headaches and eye trouble.

Full Pay in Loaf-or-Study Plan

Take Year Off, Everyone

LOS ANGELES (AP) — How would you like to take a year off from your job and get paid to loaf or study?

A labor expert says it would "cut down the toll of pressure which makes widows of half of the nation's women."

LABOR RESEARCHER

The idea was advanced in an interview by Arthur Carstens, administrator of labor programs for the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Leisure, says Carstens, should be distributed throughout a person's life — not concentrated in his youth and old age.

ONE IN FIVE?

He proposes a system so that a person would be required to take off one year in every five or seven and spend the time in leisure or in study.

"My proposal would be designed to encourage continuing education and moves from one type of work to another," Carstens says.

KEEPS SALARY

He suggests that the worker's salary during his year off be paid half by the state and half by his employer.

Who would take up the slack left by these sabbaticals?

Carstens suggests that people of retirement age be retained and that young people get into the labor market earlier. He calls it "borrowed time."

Carstens says:

"We have bribed the old people with pensions to stay out of our way and have forced the young people out of the work market by keeping them in schools. We have packed all of a person's work into the middle third of his life."

Of the enforced retirement of older persons, Carstens asks:

"How do you tell a man when to stop thinking?"
